The first session of the workshop was on “Framing of issues” by resource person, Mr. V. Breznev, XVII Assistant Judge, City Civil Court, Chennai. The resource person clearly and in detail explained the art of framing issues. He then displayed few model cases on which the issues were to be framed by the participants.

After a short tea break, the next session was on framing of charges. The Director of the Academy firstly, set the tone for the day by asking questions about framing of charges and issues. Then there was a practical activity where, model cases were displayed for which the participants had to frame charges.

The model questions were handpicked by the Director and his team comprising of the Deputy Directors from few of the judgments submitted by the participants. After displaying each question, the participants were to frame charges and there was a discussion on the charges framed. Wherever the participants found difficulties, the Director gave his suggestions. The participants asked few doubts on framing of charges which were duly clarified.

Later, there was a discussion on the issues framed by the participants. Wherever the participants found difficulties, the resource person along the Director gave their suggestions. The participants asked few doubts related to framing of issues which were duly clarified.

In the post lunch session, a mock court was set-up and the participants adorned the Bench as an actual Court. The participants were give on the spot feedback and corrections by the Director.

The main objective of conducting the Mock Court was to improve the quality in recording of evidence, handling of court and deciding the admissibility of the evidence tendered.

At the end of the day the Judicial Officers were given an exercise to write a judgment with the depositions recorded during the mock court activity, along with other case materials shared to them through e-platforms. Participants were asked to submit their judgments the following day, which would then be evaluated for understanding the learning curve of conducting the workshop.

Day 2 (03/07/2022)

On the second day of the two day workshop, the first session was on 'Appreciation of Evidence', where participating judicial officers were showcased with questions based on the critical issues found after reviewing the judgments submitted by them. The Director and his team reviewed the judgments of the judicial officers and identified the critical problems and slipups which was modulated into multiple choice questions and placed before the judicial officers for discussion. The Discussion was moderated by the Director.

The interactive quiz involved multiple choice questions. The premise for each question was derived from the issues dealt with by judicial officers in their work. The questions were shared to the participants as a Google Form link. The participants were given a time limit of 2 minutes within which they had to submit their responses. Once all participants had submitted their responses, the Director opened the floor for discussion. Participants were asked to share the different answers they had given and their reason for choosing their answer. After an elaborate discussion, when the participants reached a consensus, the right answer was displayed.

This exercise was repeated for the entire session comprising of 23 questions. The objective of the exercise was to guide the participants towards the correct answer, through their own discussion, instead of displaying the correct answer right-away. The utility of the exercise was to clarify any dilemmas participants face in appreciation of evidence.

them for evaluation. Comments and suggestions were given to the participants based on the evaluation of the activity submitted by them. The Director and his team also discussed many of the errors which were common in the participants' judgments and guided them to rectify the same.
